

Promoting Religious Pluralism and a 'Sense of the Sacred' In Your School

2-day Workshop for Educators in Nashville, TN

Dates – Friday, March 5 and Saturday, March 6, 2010

Location – Harpeth Hall School (Friday) and University School of Nashville (Saturday)

Workshop Description – This two-day workshop will bring together educators from across the USA to address the issue of engaging religious diversity in your classroom and in your school. Substantive dialogue, interactive games, and tools for reflection and inquiry will enhance understanding of religious pluralism, build skills to address the topic, and give tools to use in your classroom.

Workshop Themes:

- Defining religious pluralism
- Assessing the level of religious pluralism in your school
- Establishing and sustaining activities and programs to promote religious pluralism in your school
- Creating space and time for reflection and “a sense of the sacred” at your school
- Religious pluralism as an academic concept

About GYLI, Harpeth Hall, and USN –

This workshop is offered to you by Global Youth Leadership Institute (GYLI), a non-profit organization dedicated to supporting students and teachers in building leadership and pluralism in their schools. The event is hosted by University School of Nashville, a co-ed independent school, and Harpeth Hall, an all girls independent school, each of which will provide a unique setting for the workshop.

Eligibility - The workshop is open to all educators at primary, middle, and high school levels, as well as individuals working in higher education or non-profit organizations working in an interfaith capacity.

Cost - The cost of this two-day workshop is $300 per person. If your school brings 3 or more participants, the cost will be $200 per person.

Info and registration - More information and registration are available online at www.gyli.org

Questions? Please call the GYLI office at 414-290-8142 or e-mail jblom@gyli.org
